HOW IT SEEMS TO OUTSIDERS.

HOW IT SEEMS TO OUTSIDERS.

A STRANGE WAY TO SECURE HARMONY.

Prom The Cleveland Leader.

Senator Conkling of New-York has written a letter on the political situation in that State, which may mean much or little, according to the action which follows it. Senator Conkling is the leader of the Administration wing of the New-York Republicans. But in order to secure the harmony of Republicans action in the pending State campaign, which his letter so strongly urgos, Senator Conkling must know that the question of the renomination of Gen Grant must be held in aboyance. Yet he intrudes that question to the front of his argument, and proceeds to contemn the Fenton men for their dissatisfaction with the distribution of the Federal patronage. The preaching of Mr. Conkling against letting the "personal views, objects, and mishaps of individual politicians" interfere with the great ends of the party, is all very good, and deserves to be repeated a thousand times; but we fear that as coming from so notorious a tradesman in Federal patronage, it will have but hittle weight with the politicians of New York. Mr. Conkling speaks very fairly when he says, "If I can know how by act or omission I have given just offense to any man, I ought to go and will go and make any amends in my pewar." This is in the right tone; but mere personal reconciliation will not reach the bottom of the trouble. So far as the disagreement relates to the Administration and its course toward the New-York Republican factions, the only settlement possible is to leave the question of Grant's renomination out of the Convention, and, so far as may be, out of the campaign—a thing which, as we have said, Mr. Conkling has not helped to do. The dissensions among the Republicans of New-York, growing largely out of the distribution of Federal patronage, are demonstrative of the has not helped to do. The discensions among the response incase of New-York, growing largely out of the distribution of Federal patronage, are demonstrative of the necessity of Civil Service Reform merely as a matter of patronage turns out in the end more a damage than a help to the party which wields it. The moral, civil, and financial arguments for Civil Service Reform are powerfully supplemented by the argument from party political expediency.

fally supplemented by the argument from party pendical expediency.

LET HIM GET OUT OF TPE WAY.

From The Cincinsati Commercial.

If Senator Conkling is in earnest for peace and reconcitation among the Republicans of New York, let him get out of the way and take a parcel of his official friends with him. The loss to the country would be inappreciable, and the sacrifice on his part to greater than a patriotic person ought to be able to make. It is rather cool, while holding the fattest places for himself and friends to assure the "outs" that a triming matter of place and patronage ought not to make any radical difference. If they be such inconsequential things, how easy to surrender them for the sake of peace. At least put out Murphy.

SATISFIED, OF COURSE.

to surrender them for the sake of peace. At least put out Murphy.

SATISFIED, OF COURSE.

From The Chicago Times.

Senator Roscoe Conkling has written a letter about the dissensions of the Republican party in New-York. His view of the situation is charmingly rose-colred. He is unable to discover anything to make disturbance about. His friends have got all the Federal offices in the State, and what more should the Republican party of New-York desire! Of course, all the Republicans in the State cannot have offices, and glearly the true course is to let one of the Senators have them all to distribute for his own advantage. The manifest duty of the Radicals of the Empire State is to turn in unanimously and secure the redlection of Grant, so that he (Couking) can keep the control of the federal patronage. Then everything will be lovely, liut it is just possible that the Greeley-Fenton wing of the party will be so stupidly contumacious as to reject this view of the case. Certain it is that when Sension Conkling's State Central Committee modestly ordered the distandment of the Union Republican General Committee, of which Mr. Greeley is Chairman, the flat was disregarded, and the committee proceeded to call primary meetings very much as if it intended to prolong its own existence without consulting Mr. Conkling's wishes, St Lucius O'Trigger would certainly prononnee the situation "a very pretty quarrel as it stands."

THE TRUTH WILL PREVAIL.

The Hon. HORACE GREELEY, de. Siz: I have read your reply to Mr. Cornell printed in last Saturday's TRIBUNE, with much interest and instruction. While I have never been very active as and instruction. While I have never been very active as a member of any organization, I have always been an arrosst Republican, and bave greatly regretted the dissensions in the party. Owing to the many statements that you and your Committee were connected with Tannany Hall, I had been led to sympathize with the so-called reorganization movement; but your letter has dispelled all this, and I write to thank you for your lucid statement of the whole affair, showing as it does, that Mr. Cornell has gone wide of the truth in his statements, and proving conclusively that the Presidents of the old organizations were not under the power of Tammany Hall. The proof is also conclusive that the new organization is fully in the interest of the Custom-House ring, which, I am beginning to think and see, is not entitled to the confidence of honest men.

Synopsis for the past heavily-four hours.

The barometer has fallen at the California and risen at the Rocky Mountain stations. The high pressure in the North-West has been quickly followed by a low barometer, which is now again rising. The barometer has fallen very generally from New-England to South Carolins, and especially in Florids. The disturbances of the past two days in the Eastern Gulf have probably been due to the small cyclone which has to-day passed north-eastward into Bouth Carolins, rapidly losing its violence and syreading into a general rain. Clear weather has prevailed north-west of the lower lakes, with increasing northerly winds. The temperature has fallen decidedly over the same region and still more toward Lake Superior, while it has risen in the Middle States.

Pleasant weather will probably continue on Thursday from the Blue Ridge north and west; clearing weather in Florida and Georgis; clouds and light mine from South Carolins to Virginis, with threateuing weather to Massachusetts.

FORTIETH ANNUAL EXHIBITION-INTERIOR AR-RANGEMENT AND DECORATION OF THE RINK
—LIST OF ARTICLES ALREADY RECEIVED—
HORTICULTURAL PREMIUMS—THE OPENING

AMERICAN INSTITUTE FAIR.

The Directors of the American Institute will throw open to-day the doors of the Empire Rink for their fortieth annual exhibition. The great success which has attended the former fairs of the Institute warrants the confidence which the managers express by their actions and by the extensive preparations which they have nearly completed for the coming exhibition. The immense structure has been entirely renovated, and, in addition to 9,720 square feet added for the fair of 1869 and 9,250 square feet annexed in 1870, at least 9,200 square feet of floor and gallery have been provided this year in order to meet the increased demand for space. It is intended that this shall not only eclipse all the previous exhibitions in extent and perfection of arrangement, but that it shall be the best representation of national skill, ingenuity, and industry every held in any part of the United States. The extension made this season consists of a front building upon Third-ave., 105 feet deep by 48 feet wide, and forming a spacious entrance, beside affording room for a full suite of offices and an extensive dining-hall. The woodwork of the ground floor will be painted sky-The woodwork of the ground noor will be painted sky-blue. The second story is devoted to the fine arts, and will contain an elaborate collec-tion of paintings and statuary. The room looks out upon Third-ave., and is brilliantly lighted at night by three large chandeliers, which not only illuminate the upper story, but the hall-way below, through an oval opening in the floor. Large skylights in the roof illumine the room during the day sufficiently to display the most delicate works of art. The space has been divided into 21 sections, part of which are already occupied by the following artists and photographers, beginning with the end next to the avenue: Rockwood Kurtz, Bierstadt, Fredericks, Williamson, Wers, Howell, Pearsall, Loefler, O'Nell, Sarony, Harcey, and Gurney & Son. The entire rear wall of the room is devoted t Prang's American chromos, the original paintings an copies being displayed side by side. A large painting of "The Last Supper," copied from the original drawing, will be placed on exhibition in this room The workmen are still at work on this building, and it is doubtful whether it will be completed before the end of the week. The ground-floor of this ad dition is already occupied by McAllister, optical instru ments, and by the American Lead Pencil Company. A large dining-room is seen to the right, as the leaves the vestibule to enter the main building. The establishment is let to an experienced restaurant keeper, and meals are to be furnished at all hours of the day.

On emerging from the hallway into the main building the visitor beholds a fascinating picture spread out be-fore him on the 61,000 square feet of flooring. In the foreground stands a large fountain exhibited by J. Moore & Co., the water from which cools the air agreeably. A large iron basin is surmounted by a Cupid and a swan. From the bill of the latter projects a spray of tiny jets, which melt away into mist from their very minuteness. Further on under a mammoth chandelier with 50 burners and countless prisms, is erected the pagoda which will be occupied by the band of the Empire Rink. At the rear end of the spacious room is seen machinery in motion, while on the right is the deli-cate and fragile steam engine of the Bohemian Glass The marble pyramid which occupies the central portion of the rear end of the Rink does duty for Mathews as a gigantic soda fountain.

The large segment of a circle formed by the arched roof against the rear wall of the Rink is entirely covered by a painting on canvas, from the brush of S. W. Seavey. The left is devoted to a Western land-scape, a valley, closed in by snow-capped mountains, through which a railroad train appears, the pioneer of civilization. The right of the mountains, through which a railroad train appears, the pioneer of civilization. The right of the picture is occupied by a view of a populous city on the bank of a wide inland river, spanned by a suspension bridge, while the hills in the background are covered with bright vineyards and country seats.\(^1\)

The arrangement of articles is by no means completed, and it will require several days to restore the present chaos to order. All the articles to be placed on exhibition have not yet been put in position, and the arrival of new ones is the event of every minute. Third-ave, is thronged, from Fourteenth-st. to the Rink, with carts and vehicles transporting machinery and wares of all kinds to the place of exhibition.

All the goods displayed under the shelter of the mammoth buildings are divided into seven departments, and each of these again into as many groups.

1. The Department of Fine Arts and Education is located in the front addition, and has been already described.

NEW-ENGLAND AGRICULTURAL FAIR. THE ANNUAL EXHIBITION IN PROGRESS AT LOWELL - SOME OF THE LEADING EX-

HIBITORS. LOWELL, Sept. 6 .- The eighth annual exhibition of the New-England Agricultural Society opened yesterday, and with every promise of success. In ac-cordance with established usage, this State was entitled to the fair this year. The people proved equal to the occasion, and on finding that the grounds of the Middlesex North Agricultural Society were not large enough for the New-England organisation, the enterprising citizens raised about $11,000 by subscription, and by securing 26 more acres of land, in addition to the 15 acres heretofore used by the Society. The grounds are about three-fourths of a mile from the city proper, are easy of access, and the Boston and Lowell Railroad Company, has erected a temporary station near the entrance to the grounds for use during the fair. That the society has the hearty support of the farmers and people of New-England, and that its mission is appreciated, is evident from the fact that its exhibitions seem to improve in all respects every year. Each show has some points superior to or in addition to those of its predecessor, and a glance at the different departments and a short conversation with the officers indicate that this exhibition will be the best that the Society has ever had. There are accommodations for more than 700 head of cattle, and nearly all the pens are full. The leading exhibitors in this department are the following gentleexhibitors in this department are the following genue-men: Short-horn-Thomas B. Wales, jr., South Framing-ham, Masa.; John N. CINCINNATI INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 6.- The second Cincinnati Industrial Exposition was formally opened this evening in the presence of the officers, committees, exhibitors, and a large attendance of visitors. An immense amount of labor was performed to-day, though much remains to be done before the Exposition will present its best appearance. The horticultural display embraces amount of labor was performed to day, tuest as a mains to be done before the Exposition will present its best appearance. The horticultural display embraces almost 15,000 specimens of the rarest plants and flowers, and is one of the great features. Domestic, mechanics, agricultural, power, textile, fabric, and art halls, embrace nearly four acres, the floors of which are literally covered with articles of utility and beauty. The display of machinery is better than last year, when it was a distinguished feature of the Exposition. The display of manufactured articles for the household and of drugs and chemicals is larke and singularly good. The exhibitors represent all sections of the country. Among the textile fabrics the South has a favorable representation. The demand for space continues unabsted, and the applications to the present time are double the number that can be accommodated. Though the Exposition is in all respects decidedly in advance of last year, it will not be in its best dress before the first of next week.

Committees on Finance, Correspondence, Law; and New Business have been appointed.

OBITUARY.

AALI PACHA GRAND VIZIER OF TURKEY.

Aali Pacha, Mehemet Emin, the eminent Turkish statesman and Grand Visier, whose death is an ounced by cable, was born in 1815, and, at the early age of 15, under the patronage of Reachid Pacha, entered the pub-lic service. In 1834, he was appointed Second Secretary to the Embassy of the Porte at Vienna, and in November, 1837, he was made Grand Interpreter to the Divan. After acting as Chargé d'Affaires at London, and Under Secretary of State in Turkey, he returned, in 1841, to London as Embassador, and remained there until 1844, when he returned to Turkey and held important appointments during the ensuing two years. When Reschid Pacha be-came Grand Vizier, Aali succeeded him as Minister of Poreign Affairs, and remained constant to him during the various political vicisaltudes of 1846-52. Having been promoted to the dignity of Muebir, Asil changed his title to Pacha. In 1861 Asil attained the high rank of Grand Visier, but retired in a few his title to Pacha. In 1861 Aali attained the high rank of Grand Visier, but retired in a few years on the rejection of a proposed Ottoman loan. He remained in comparative disfavor until 1864, when the Sultan, then contending with Russia, needing the sage counsels of his ex-Visier, rocalled him to the capital and made him President of the Council of the Tansimat, or Reform, and Minister of Foreign Afiairs.

In 1865, Aali represented the Porte at the Conferences of Vienna, and returned to reoccupy the post of Grand Visier, to which he had been appointed during his absence. He next acted as first Plenipotentiary of the Porte at Paris, and in that capacity took an active part in the Conference held in that city. Owing to some contention which arose concerning the execution of the treaty of peace, he resigned the Grand Visiership, but regained it in 1858, on the death of Raschid Pacha, and held it for a short time. During the succeding nine years he filled several important offices, and showed considerable ability in conducting the affairs of Turkey during the many important complications of the period. The disturbed state of Crete and the contangent troubles impelied the Sultan to reappoint Aali Grand Visier in 1867, and when, some months later, the Sultan visited Paris, Aali exercised the functions of Regent, which slawys devolve on the Vizier in the Sultan's absence.

Asil Pasha was regarded in Europe as a progressive minister, an earnest friend of reform in Turkey, and a skillful, painstaking diplomatist. His last illness was regarded with deep concern by the Sultan and people of Constantinopie. SEAMEN'S WRONGS.

ABUSES BY THE SAILOR BOARDING-HOUSE KEEP-ERS-OPEN VIOLATIONS OF LAW.

The abuses of the rights of seamen by the proprietors of boarding-houses are daily becoming more flagrant, and all kinds of devices are used to rob and cheat the defengeless sailor, who, it has been frequently proved, can hope for little protection from the courts in this city. The plan adopted by the Seamen's Friend Society of New-York, and incorporated in the bill which will be presork, and incorporated in the bill which will be pre-sented to Congress at the next session, is the result of years of futile attempts to coerce by law this class of secoundrels. The Seamen's Friend Seciety of this city has expended thousands of dollars in trying to convict disreputable boarding-house keepers of theft and abuse; but they have, as yet, utterly failed under the present corrupt judiciary to secure a single conviction.

The cause of three-fourths of the trickery practiced upon sailors is the right assumed by these men to board. vessels at Quarantine, for the purpose of securing the crews for lodgers at their respective houses. The statute of thee State of New-York governing this action is very of thae State of New York governing this action is very plain, but, although quite stringent, it seems utterly inadequate to accomplish its humane and beneficent purpose. It creates a Board of Commissioners, consisting of one member each from the Chamber of Commorce, Seamen's Friend Society, Board of Underwriters, New York Port Society, and New York Marine Society. This commission is intrusted with the whole matter of licensing sallors' boarding-houses, and as they refuse to license those kept by the corrupt roughs of Water and Cherry-sts., these outlaws utterly ignore the existence of both the statute and the Commissioners.

The sections of the statute, estitled "An act for the better protection of seamen in the Port of New-York," relating to the boarding of vessels in the harbor are as follows:

Sacrios I. It shall not be lawful for any person, except a pilot or Saorton I. It shall not be lawfuh for any person, except a pilot or public officer, to board or attempt to board a vessel arriving in the port or harbor of New-York, before such vessel shall have been made first by the wharf, without first obtaining leaves from the master or person harbor charge of such reasel, or leave, in writing, from her owners or agond, Sac. 14. Whoever shall officed against any or either of the previsions contained in Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 13, and 13 in this set shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeaner, and shall, upon conviction thereof, be pushed by imprisonment in a county juil for a began not seconding one year, nor less than 30 days.

Despite this law, it is demonstrated that, under existing political influence, the Grand Judy will not indict and the Prosecuting Attorney will not urge a case.

THE COOPER UNION FREE NIGHT CLASSES. Applications for admission to the free evening classes of the Cooper Union will be received this month on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings. GAMBLING IN WHEAT.

GAMBLING IN WHEAT.

From The Deliver Probuse.

Another illustration of the beauties of that artensive gambling-house, known as the Chicago Board of Trade, is given by the history of the "corner" in wheat which culminated on Thursday last. On the last of August a combination bought 2,000,000 bushels of No. 2 Spring wheat, at "seller's option one mouth," intending, by buying up all the wheat that came into the market, to keep the price up to a fancy figure, and compel those who had sold to them to settle on such terms as the "combination" should fix. To de this the "Ring" raised about $1,000,000, and expected to make 10 cents a bushel in the transaction, clearing $200,000. They succeeded very well its forcing up prices and in clearing their contracts with a large number of the short sellers at a large profit. But the story of the combination leaked out, and the sellers began to prepare for the and of the month. Wheat began to pour in rapidly during the last month. Wheat began to pour in rapidly during the last week, and it required every resource of the "corner" to keep up the price. So, at the last minute, the Ring turned on the "shorts" and fought them with their own weapons, selling out, before their programms became known, at the figures to which they had forced the market. It is estimated that in this way they have cleared about $110,000. Of course this operation is simply gambling on a gigantic scale, in which every species of tricking y is considered legitimate. Its pasin result is to discrete
